@ email

Dear James

Thanks for your e-mail – great news. I'm so happy you're finally coming to visit me and meet all my friends and family. It's a pity Julie can't come. I'll have to meet her some other time.

Unfortunately, I can't get to the station to meet you when you arrive. I have to work until six on Wednesday. But don't worry, my wife says she'll be there to meet you.

Of course, you don't know what Jane looks like so I'm sending you a photo. It's a bit old and her hair is much shorter than this. But I think you'll recognise her. She's got your photo, too – the one you sent me last Christmas. Do you still look the same?

Anyway, I'll be home at seven and then we can go out for a meal. There's a great Chinese restaurant near our house. I remember you like Chinese food. Or we can eat at home. Jane cooks really good Chinese food. I'm free all weekend so we can do lots of things. How about going to a football match – so you can see how we play it here?

All the best

Rod
